

A Sample

Stranded: A Story of Survival

In the vast Pacific Ocean, among the endless blue waves, lay a small, uninhabited island cloaked in mystery and solitude. This was where our story began, with four courageous young explorers – Mia, Jack, Lily, and Tom – who had set sail on a school excursion that would soon become the adventure of a lifetime.

Excitement filled the air as the children boarded the boat, their laughter mingling with the gentle hum of the engine. They dreamed of discovering hidden treasures and encountering exotic wildlife as they embarked on their journey. But their dreams were shattered when a sudden storm descended upon them, lashing the boat with fierce winds and towering waves. In the chaos, the vessel was torn apart, and the children found themselves cast adrift in the rolling sea.

Gasping for air and clinging to debris, Mia, Jack, Lily, and Tom were washed ashore on the sandy beach of the deserted island. As they gathered their wits amidst the wreckage, fear gave way to determination as they realized they must band together to survive. They set about building a shelter from palm fronds and driftwood, their hands working tirelessly against the setting sun. Despite the looming uncertainty, they found comfort in each other's company, drawing strength from each other.

As days turned into weeks, the children confronted the harsh realities of life on the island. They scavenged for food, hunted for fish along the rocky shore, and gathered wild fruits from the dense jungle. They made tools from washed-up debris and learned to kindle fire from dry branches. Yet, they also grappled with their fears – of the unknown, of the vastness of the ocean that separated them from home. But through courage and perseverance, they pressed on, refusing to stop.

Just when it seemed all hope was lost, a glimmer of hope appeared on the horizon. A passing ship, its sails flapping in the breeze, offered the promise of rescue. With renewed determination, the children created a signal fire from driftwood and palm leaves, their flames dancing against the night sky. And as the ship drew near, they realized that their journey was not yet over – but with the strength of their friendship and the lessons learned on the island, they knew they could face whatever challenges lay ahead.

As Mia, Jack, Lily, and Tom bid farewell to the deserted island that had been their home, they carried with them the marks of their adventure. For in the ordeal of survival, they had discovered the true meaning of courage, resilience, and friendship – lessons that would stay with them long after they returned to the world they had left behind.

Noun groups

Adverbial phrases

Paragraphs

Punctuation

Prepositional phrases

Topic specific vocabulary including synonyms and antonyms

Complex and compound sentences

Multisyllabic words

Multimorphemic words

Text structures

Introduction – problem, climax, solution, conclusion

Development of setting and characters

Tense

Connectives

